

Dr. Hoesung Lee is Vice-chair of Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), elected since 2008 and professor at Korea University Graduate School of Energy and Environment, Seoul, Korea. His research encompasses the economics of climate change, energy and sustainable development. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Korean Academy of Environmental Sciences, past president of the Korea Resources Economics Association, and a member of the Asian Development Bank President's Advisory Board on Climate Change and Sustainable Development. Lee was the founding president of the Korea Energy Economics Institute -- a government agency for national energy policy development. He was Distinguished Research Fellow at the Korea Environment Institute, senior adviser to the Minister of Energy and Resources and the Minister of Environment, senior fellow at the Korea Development Institute and economist at Exxon Company USA. He served as the president of the International Association for Energy Economics, member of the International Advisory Board of the Battelle-Pacific Northwest National Lab, USA, the Board of Directors of Hyundai Corporation, Korea Petroleum Development Corporation and the Institute for Global Environmental Strategies, Japan. He was Co-chair of the IPCC Working Group III (the socio-economic dimensions of climate change) for the Second Assessment Report which provided a scientific basis for the UNFCCC's Kyoto Protocol. He served as lead author and review editor for the various IPCC assessments. He has served on many national and international committees addressing climate change and energy. He received Ph.D. in economics from Rutgers University, USA.